

7 November 2019

Guy Barnett, Liberal Member for Lyons

Labor's secret report, 614 days later what is White hiding?

Federal Labor today released its report into this year's election defeat, however 614 days after Tasmanian Labor's election defeat, Rebecca White still refuses to release the report into her party's shock loss.

Rebecca White is clearly desperate to keep the skeletons buried from Labor's third worst election performance.

There's no doubt Labor's refusal to release this secret report and failure to take a stand on the tough issues stems from the internal turmoil as the Labor Party struggles with a leadership identity crisis.

This is a party that makes statements about protecting jobs, then continues to vote in lock-step with the job-destroying Greens, and given the half the chance would do a deal with the Greens to get back into government.

Labor no longer wants to represent the views of everyday, hardworking Tasmanians and is happy to sacrifice regional jobs to keep its inner-city voters happy.

After five and a half years in Opposition, Labor still has no long-term plan for Tasmania's economic future, nor apologised for the 10,000 jobs lost under their last Labor-Green Government.

The Hodgman majority Liberal Government has a plan to grow our economy and strengthen our regions, and our plan is working with 15,000 jobs created since we came to government and unemployment down in every local Government regions.